

Download From The Beginning Perspectives From New & Emerging Student Affairs Professionals

About the Institute. NPI - New Professionals Institute is the preeminent professional development opportunity for new student affairs professionals in the south (we consider 'new professionals' anyone with five years or fewer of full-time experience in Student Affairs). In our conference in Seattle, we will explore a number of ways that challenges can be viewed as opportunities. We will continue to focus, as we have for the last several years, on changing models of student success: predictive analytics, pathways, intrusive advising, etc. The Public Affairs Association of Canada is pleased to invite you to our Award of Distinction Luncheon. Join friends, colleagues and fellow PAAC members as we honour the recipient of the 2012 PAAC Award of Distinction, Steve Paikin. LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14, 2018 - Based on input from talent acquisition, development and compensation experts from across the globe, Korn Ferry (NYSE: KFY) has identified emerging global talent trends for 2019. "Several factors, including an incredibly tight labor market and the massive influx of data are impacting the way HR professionals and talent acquisition leaders are doing their jobs ...
