Fought from 19 February to 26 March 1945, Battle of Iwo Jima was an amphibious attack by the American forces on the island of Iwo Jima in Japan during the Second World War. Lasting for 36 days, the battle saw some of the fiercest fighting of the Pacific War. The photo of raising the U.S. flag over Mount Suribachi in Iwo Jima became an iconic image of not only the battle but of World War II. Hope someone can advise with this ... I run a small company employing 20 staff - one staff member has requested annual leave which I have declined as it is requested at the same time as other staff holidays which will leave the business under staffed and could potentially jeopardise the registration of the business that is required to run it (under health and safety regulations).
